

Can Reno Fire Fighters show up to work impaired on alcohol and drugs? Ridiculous you say? Read on:

“RENO, Nev. (KRNV & MyNews4.com) - Reno Fire Fighters can show up to work with up to a .08 percent blood alcohol level without facing punishment, this according to a new report from the Reno Gazette Journal.

The RGJ report continues to says it is also okay for Fire Fighters to have certain levels of illegal drugs in their system while working without facing discipline; Drugs that include marijuana and cocaine. This is according to the Fire Fighter contract with the city and the policy cannot be changed unless it goes through the collective bargaining process.

The RGJ report by Anjeanette Damon continues to say every other City of Reno employee falls under the city's general drug and alcohol policy that dictates a clear prohibition on drug and alcohol use, "While on duty, whether on or off city property, employees are prohibited from using, being under the influence of, possessing, manufacturing, distributing, dispensing, ingesting and/or inhaling alcohol or illegal."

A copy of the outrageous policy on request: No discipline first offense, no random testing, two RFD witnesses required... on & on...

As of August 2014, Reno has done nothing saying it is subject to negotiation. Bull! We can and will do something! What can you do?

Contact us! 800 554 9519

Contact your Reno elected officials! 775 334 2099, bring your kids and speak at council: Wednesdays at noon! City Hall, First & Virginia,

Contact the Nevada Attorney General: Office of the Attorney General
5420 Kietzke Lane, Suite 202, Reno, NV 89511, 775-688-1818

Contact the Firefighter's union and get their side: Reno Firefighters Local 731, 390 Kirman Ave, Reno, NV 89502, 775-355-9010